

A photograph of a large, multi-story building that has been severely damaged, likely during a war. The building features a prominent circular section with a dome that is now just a skeletal framework of metal or stone. The walls are crumbling, and many windows are missing, leaving dark voids. In the foreground, there are dark, silhouetted structures that appear to be part of a lower level or a different building. The background shows some trees with sparse leaves, suggesting an autumn or winter setting. The overall tone is somber and historical.

Hitler First World War Celibacy

Research Report

April 26, 2025